Investigation underway after fatality at bridge

By DAVE TAYLOR

A construction worker injured last week at the Milton-Madison Bridge has died, according to Greg Prince, spokesman for the Indiana Department of Transportation's Seymour Division.

Austin, Ind., resident Roger Lee Cox, 50, was taken off life support on Thursday, May 3, and was pronounced dead at 5:45 p.m., Prince said.

We still don't know the cause of death," Prince said. "The only thing we know for sure is that he was found unconscious at the work site."

Cox, employed by Walsh Construction Company, the contractor for the replacement of the Milton-Madison Bridge, was found unresponsive Monday in a lift basket while working near the temporary ramp in Madison. He was taken to The King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison and transferred by helicopter to University Hospital in Work at the site was halted following the accident but resumed on the following day. An investigation is being conducted by Walsh Construction Company and the Indiana Occupational Safety and Hazard Agency, Prince said.

"I can confirm that the Indiana Occupational Safety and Health Administration is investigating the fatal accident at the Madison bridge site on April 30,' Robert E. Dittmer, APR Director of Public Relations for the Indiana Department of Revenue and Indiana Department of Labor, said in an email to The Trimble Banner on Monday. "Investigators have already been on the scene conducting their investigation. I cannot confirm any details at this time."

"Walsh is in full cooperation with IOSHA," Prince said. "My understanding is that IOSHA has been conducting interviews with other people who were working close to the victim to learn what they may have seen or heard. They have also been inspecting equipment at the site."

Until the investigation is complete and details of the accident

No approach ramp remains to bridge the divide between the U.S. 421 roadway in Milton and the 82-year-old Milton-Madison Bridge (above). The few remaining steel beams of the old ramp were removed by demolition crews last week. Cleanup work continues as concrete rubble and twisted pieces of steel are still being removed from the area. The original concrete abutment at the end of the ramp (below) resembles an ancient ruin. Temporary ramps have been in use by traffic since late Saturday, April 28.

Entities seek to dispose of Louisville sludge at Wises Landing quarry

By DAVE TAYLOR

The Trimble Banner

Two local companies have applied for permits in connection with a plan to place sludge from Louisville in a Trimble County quarry facility.

"Liters Quarry has filed an application with the Kentucky Division of Waste Management to receive sludge from the Louisville Water Company to use as fill material in the quarry," Trimble County Water District No. 1 spokesperson Dara Smith said by phone Monday.

Liter's Inc., based in Louisville, purchased Trimble County Sand and Gravel quarry in Wises Landing in 1993.

Additionally, barge-fleeting company McBride River Service LLC has filed an application with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to modify their existing fleeting facility at 463 Wises Landing Road.

'The applicant proposes to construct a dry dock and conveyor system," according to a public notice issued by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Louisville District office. "A conveyor system would be constructed to offload material (soil) from barges. The material would be off-loaded from a barge by a crane anchored to a spar barge, then deposited onto a 150-foot long conveyor belt, dumped into trucks and hauled to an upland disposal site located at the existing Liter's Quarry, just northwest of the fleeting facility."

"I am aware of it," Trimble County Judge-Executive Randy Stevens said by phone Monday. "They've talked to Trimble County Water District No. 1 about it and they've talked to me about the use of county roads to transport the sludge. I understand they do have some plan for conveying the sludge part of the way." Wises Landing resident Roger Gaddie said the plan is of concern to neighbors of the quarry and river fleeting facilities due to the location of the aquifer that supplies both Trimble County water District No.1 and Henry County Water District No. 2. Stevens said the safety of the water supply would be a prior-

"The big concern would be the Trimble County Water Company's well heads being right there in close proximity and making sure it wasn't susceptible to leakage into that aquifer," Stevens said. The wells for the Trimble County Water District No. 1 are located about 1,500 feet from the quarry property, Smith said. The wells for the Henry County Water District 2 are about onehalf mile south of the Trimble wells, she said.

"Our understanding is the state has asked them for more information but Liters has not yet provided it. We're following the application process pretty closely," Smith said.

Lindsey Briggs, Environmental Engineer Supervisor with the Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet, verified by email Monday "a notice of deficiency was sent and their consultant asked for a time extension to respond."

McBride River Service LLC purchased property at Mile 572.5 on the Ohio River near Wises Landing in 2008 and received a permit to operate a 30-barge fleeting facility the following year, according to a report in The Waterways Journal Weekly in August 2011. The Waterways

Over the Rainbow Musical involves 140 students

"Come on, guys! We've only got a week here! From the top of the scene!"

Drama Sponsor Jon Graham implores his Musical Theater class to do it again. And again. And again.

"I want this to be something the community will remember for years," he says.

There's certainly cast enough for it to be memorable. Forty-five students are in the elective class at the high school with parts that range from Dorothy's two-hour stage time to blink-and-you'llmiss-it Munchkin #3. Forty band members belt out music arranged by Band Director and co-Drama teacher Matt Leedy, or, more often, songs actually composed by Mr. Leedy for the performance. Then there's five middle school students trying to keep 35 elementary school students on the 42-minute class. Barely. "I don't think we've been able to get through four scenes total yet," grumbles Graham, as sophomore Juliann Dunlap sings Judy Garland's classic, "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" onstage. "Good, Juliann. That'll do for today. Let's go on to the next scene!" "It's hard work," says Sydney Brewer, TCHS senior playing the Tin Man. "I didn't know how hard it would be. My costume's crazy hot, and I'll probably pass out in the middle of the play. If not, it'll be great."

Senior Miranda Beitel agrees. In her three years on the TCHS stage, Miranda has played leads in everything from a vampire parody to Cinderella. But this is the most scared she's been.

"It's such a large undertaking that we haven't been able to thoroughly go through every part making it difficult to piece everything together. On top of knowing my lines, I feel like I have to know everyone else's line too. Because they're lost on stage."

"This one's been difficult," says senior Bethany Mejean. "There are so many people involved. My part (Glinda the Good Witch) is small—it's easy to remember, but

Court furloughs will not affect other courthouse offices here

Judicial Branch employees learned last week that they will be furloughed for three days in the first half of Fiscal Year 2013 as a result of deep cuts the Kentucky General Assembly made to the court system's budget for Fiscal Years 2013 and 2014. The furloughs will close courthouses statewide on Aug. 6, Sept. 4 and Oct. 15, 2012.

In Trimble County, only the judicial offices will be closed on the furlough days, according to Trimble County Judge-Executive Randy Stevens. All other courthouse offices will be open for business as usual, he said

This marks the first time since Kentucky's modern court system was formed in 1976 that the Judicial Branch must close courthouse doors to balance its budget. Furloughs are one of several measures included in the Judicial JUDICIAL, Page 10

Drinking Water Week reminds Kentuckians to conserve water

FRANKFORT, Ky. - The Kentucky Division of Water encourages Kentuckians during National Drinking Water Week, May 6-12, to practice water conservation every day of the year.

Water is a crucial natural resource. Without water, there would be no life on Earth. Water also affects our health, lifestyle and economic well being. Consider just a few of the many ways we use water - sanitation and hygiene, food preparation, recreation, industry and agriculture, transportation, energy production, sewage treatment, and many more.

Water covers about 75 percent of our planet, so it appears plentiful. However, 97 percent of that water is salty ocean water, which we cannot drink. Of the three percent that is fresh water, most is frozen in glaciers and polar ice caps. As a result, only 1 percent of the Earth's water may be available for drinking.

Moreover, the Earth's water supply is fixed: no new water is being made. The existing water supply is continuously recycled. Although the recycling process cleans water naturally, water can become contaminated -- by microorganisms, metals, salts, chemicals, medical waste and other substances -- and can thus become unsafe for human use.

Preventing water pollution and conserving water will help to ensure an adequate supply of usable water for ourselves and for future generations. Using water wisely helps to protect the quantity and quality of our water resources. Wise water use can also help people save money on water, sewer and energy bills. It helps to reduce the demand on water treatment and wastewater facilities and to reduce the amount of waste put into rivers and streams.

Here are some simple ways to reduce the amount of water you consume:

Save Water Inside the Home

*Replace old toilets with high-efficiency models.

*Replace old washing machines with models that use half as much water. *Check for leaks in toilets and pipes.

*Run full loads in clothing and dishwashing machines.

*Keep drinking water cooling in the refrigerator. *Plug the bathroom sink while shaving and reuse *Turn off water while brushing teeth until ready to rinse. *Replace old showerheads with high-efficiency models that reduce flow from six gallons per minute to less than three gallons per minute. *Install aerators on all faucets to reduce flow by 50 percent.

Save Water Outside the Home

*Mulch bushes and trees to retain moisture. *Raise the mower blade to three inches to encourage root growth for holding soil moisture.

*Apply fertilizers with slow-release water-insoluble forms of nitrogen.

Kentucky seeing beginnings of lasting growth arlier this year, as the General Assembly was putting together the budget to run state government, it was becoming increasingly clear that the state was finally beginning to see some lasting

That was further confirmed several weeks ago, when one of the state's economists said that 'all signs are pointing to the likelihood that the recovery is

We're seeing

that in places like the unemployment rate, which for more than eight months now Focus on has been in steady decline. Frankfort Although still higher than State Rep. anyone prefers, Rick Rand March's 8.6 percent was a full percentage point less than it was in March 2011. Kentucky saw more than 34,000 jobs added during that 12-month period.

What is promising about the growth is that it has been spread fairly evenly. Economists split the job market into 11 major categories - from manufacturing to education and health services - and over the last year six of those saw gains and two others remained steady.

A more long-term report that state budget officials gave late last month offers additional hope as well. It found that, in the first three months of this year, Kentuckians' overall salaries were up more than five percent and are projected to outpace the national average through December.

Not surprisingly, the state's revenues have benefited from this economic uptick. The state's General Fund has grown by 4.3 percent over the last nine months, a figure that is significantly higher than had been forecast, and the Road Fund is doing even better, with growth up more than seven percent.

Kentucky's efforts to boost the economy are getting more notice nationally. Since 2008, for example, Forbes has moved us up 19 spots in its annual ranking of business climate among the states.

A national trade publication that tracks new and expanded business activity, meanwhile, put us eighth among the states in 2011, our highest ranking ever. What's especially remarkable is that Kentucky was the smallest state population-wise among the leaders. We scored so highly because we had nearly 200 projects last year that either had, at a minimum, investment of $1 million, the creation of 50 jobs or the addition of at least 20,000 square feet of new floor space.

Another trade publication called Kentucky's partnership with Ford Motor Company the economic deal of the year last year. Thanks to a tax-incentive package the General Assembly offered, Ford has invested more than $1 billion in its Louisville operations and hired several thousand new workers. This year, the General Assembly offered the same package to General Motors, Toyota and several large auto parts companies, if they are willing to meet the same criteria Ford did.

The auto industry has been an especially bright spot for the state in recent months. In 2011, according to the Cabinet for Economic Development, more than 70 auto-related facilities either expanded or located here.

There are still numerous challenges when it comes to getting Kentucky's economy back to where we want it, but as these examples show, there are reasons to believe that we have a lot in our favor, too. My hope is that 2012 continues that trend.

As always, please don't hesitate to contact me if you have any questions or comments about state government. I hope to hear from you soon.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Project Prom chair expresses appreciation to local community, committee members

On behalf of Trimble County Project Prom I would like to thank those who donated to us. Whether it was through a donation of money, items or time we appreciate all that was given to make this event such a success.

I would especially like to thank the Project Prom Committee and the dedication they have brought to this committee. Many were new to this committee this year and they were fantastic workers. Without a committee this event would not be possible.

At the end of the night the juniors and seniors can win many awesome prizes. The committee goes out and shops for the items with a portion of the funds donated to the project. I would also like to thank the Wal-Mart of LaGrange who gave us 10 percent off our total purchases to be given away.

There are many people, companies, churches and organizations that give to this great cause and we as a committee greatly appreciate their dedication to this event. Without you it would not be possible.

God Loves the Poor

"The poor are shunned even by their neighbors, but the rich have many friends. It is a sin to despise one's neighbor, but blessed is the one who is kind to the needy." Proverbs 14:20-21

The Bible contains over 2000 references to poverty and social justice issues, with at least 200 references telling us directly to help the poor. Throughout the Old and New Testament we are commanded to help those in need, whether they are widows, orphans, immigrants, or the impoverished. Nowhere are we advised to question whether they are lazy or why they find themselves in dire straits. We are simply told to help them. The Bible even institutes particular social programs to help the poor. Farmers are instructed to leave the corners of their fields Wesleyan Holiness (Leviticus 19:9) Perhaps if we had such wise social programs today, updated to reflect the realities of modern economies, there would be less poverty, or at least there might be less misery amongst the impoverished. It is probably true that we shall always have the poor with us, and this makes it more important, not less, that we should minister to their needs.

Milton Elementary Bullying: A student's perspective

By MIRANDA LEWIS

Trimble County Middle School

Who's the victim?

With the simple question that is stated above, I'm sure your mind flashed to the small kid that gets kicked around. That's the stereotype. But life is complex with all the power that is getting handed around and stolen. So, before all of us start pointing fingers at who is making all of the victims, what really makes a person a victim? Typically, it's someone who's been hurt-emotionally physically—by someone else. Or it's a person that is being tormented by other people and is hated for unknown, irrational reasons. Victims are not something to joke about and neither is the concept of bullying. Bullying has harsh effects on both the victim and the bully. Keep that in mind when you see a so-called victim throwing words around that aren't so nice, or a bully crying because he's being punished. Reactions are different, but the consequences of the community are still the same.

What's a Bully?

Our minds are damaged by all of the media that portrays bullies as big tough or hurtful it's a way of coping because they get hurt. We think of bullies as the big guys who are abusive. While that's all too true, there are other forms of bullying and when a smaller kid acts out in violence or harshness, that's bullying. Stereotyping, excluding, laughing at, abusing, cyber, and talking about someone negatively are all forms of bullying. So, imagine your own school system. Who hasn't been guilty of committing a minority of any of these forms? Bullies are being knocked down everywhere, but only some types are being recognized. Bullies are proven to be people that have been hurt, and they have a bad way of dealing with what's happened. So, bullies are really a form of victims. So why are there so many programs, flyers, posters and television shows about how to avoid or tell on a bully when really there should be more programs about how to help the victims deal with problems? We need to start eliminating the problem before it's formed. We need to cope instead of people and when the littler

kids say something rude

Paying it backwards

Life is a very complex gets very confusing and hard. Why? Because you are going to get knocked down; someone is going to push you over and smile in satisfaction. The bullying population is steadily increasing because when that one person starts to knock somebody down that person never stands up. They sit and they feel sorry for themselves and refuse to, as scientifically proven, deal with their own problems. They push them onto someone else, and this action is called paying it backwards. When somebody knocks you down, like they will, because it does, in fact, happen to everyone, they push three more in a return. Society is on a downward spiral. There are no heroes in our generation, because nobody is standing up. In the overtaking drive to the top we're massacring other people. This world will not continue to thrive and have success when everybody is throwing us three steps in the opposite direction. We need heroes. Who's going to step up? How to pay it forward and changing thing. It

Stand up! Part of life will always be to get knocked down. There's nothing we can do about the structure of the human mind of our race.

Everyone is being bullied now. Everyone is pushing each other now. But we can stop it. YOU can stop it. The way isn't hard. It's a skill you learned before you knew what to do with it. You stand. When someone knocks you down, swing right back up. Don't let them keep you on the ground when you can stand twenty feet high. Eventually we'll have a vast number of people who got back up. That vast number will band together. And what happened when they band together? They never get knocked down. They can stand tall and strong and reach their dreams, but they can't do it alone. Start the chain reaction. Stand up and pull someone to their feet with you. That's how you pay it forward. Instead of knocking people down, pull them up! When all you want is the finish line in this race, knocking people down is just messing up your finish time. YOU can change this bullying epidemic. Bullies are going to have some magical epiphanies when the people they're knocking down are doing exactly what they want. You can make the change. You can be the hero we need. So, the decision is left with you - are you going to stand up against bullying?

Wednesday after-school practices with elementary school and middle school students brought the cast to full force.

And what a force it is. "There could be 140 kids in this production. How much luck would it take for everything to go just exactly right?" muses Graham.

Regardless, Drama has been a great experience for Beitel and Mejean. "It's been my favorite part of high school. I love acting, so it's just been the highlight of my career."

The production will be staged at 7 p.m. at the TCHS Gym on Thursday, May 10, Friday, May 11, and Saturday, May 12. Cost is $5.00 for adults, $3.00 for students, and those four and under are free.

"It's by far the largest cast I've ever dealt with," says Graham. "The logistics of 80 people on-stage, not to mention the band immediately below that is... daunting."

The plan started early enough. TCHS students began monologues and song auditions as soon as they returned to school in January. Juliann Dunlap was, as expected, remarkable, but the highlight of the first month was the revelatory ability of freshman, Cade Thornsberry. His rendition of Frank Sinatra's classic, "Fly Me to the Moon" brought down the house. From February forward, actors have been working on blocking, sets, memorizing lines, and perfecting pitches. 'I have one line, but we work on it at least once per week," said freshman Chris Goodin. "The choreography... I should know. We've gone over it enough."

Other scenes haven't worked out as well.

"The kids have to deal with imaginary trees, imaginary props, and, when someone's absent, imaginary cast mates,3 says Graham. "It's not easy, especially considering they have six other classes, homework, prom, graduation, jobs, and athletics. It takes a special person to take this on."

Band members had even less time to devote to the production.

Band director Leedy handed out "Oz" music after shortly March arrived, and, piece by piece, created the backbone for the production. Band members excelled under his expert tute-

Much of the music was written especially for the production by Leedy. "It's one of my favorite things to do," he says, of writing original music. His rendition of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," for example, had to be arranged where Dunlap could belt out the classic.

Michael

Lehmkuhler, UK Extension Beef Specialist, cautions that feed additives, like Poloxalene, used to aid in reducing the risk to bloat must be consumed at the targeted levels every day.

Overcrowding around blocks and mineral feeders will prevent some cattle from obtaining their necessary amount. Last week's sudden heat wave pushed cattle to seek shade. Heat will also slightly alter grazing patterns resulting in larger meal bouts and increased risk to bloat. Moving the bloat blocks and mineral feeders near shade and water sources will encourage more consumption during this heat and may lower risk.

Producers should use 1 block / 5 head or less to avoid overcrowding and increase opportunities for all cattle to consume the blocks or minerals. Placing some high quality grass hay near the shade areas will also stimulate greater consumption of hay to lower the risk of bloat. One feed manufacturer.

Burkmann Feeds, sells a custom pellet that contains poloxalene (same ingredient in the bloat blocks) formulated to be fed at 1 pound per head per day. The cost is around $600-650/ton which is roughly $0.30 per head per day and not much more than the $0.20 per head day that the blocks are likely costing. I don't endorse particular feeds or manufacturers, so you may want to call around to local feed suppliers and see if they have a similar product.

You might want to keep a bottle of Therabloat (liquid poloxalene) on hand to drench bloated animals. The rate for Therabloat is 1 to 2 fluid ounces depending on the animal's weight. Mineral oil can also be used to lower the foaming in the rumen and allow the gas to escape. The recommended dosage for oils and fats is between 80 and 250 milliliters per head. Always call your local veterinarian as treatment can be a challenge. Severely bloated animals can die within minutes.

For more information, call the Trimble County Extension Office and ask for publication ID-186: Managing Legume Induced Bloat in Cattle.

Baling Forages: As many of you can attest to last week, putting up hay can be an extremely tricky proposition given our spring weather conditions. One alternative might be to bale the forage, then wrap it in plastic for ensiling. Round bale silage (or balage) is the product of cutting forage crops with conventional hav harvest equipment, allowing the forage to wilt to between 40 and 60 percent drymatter, baling the forage into tight bales, and quickly wrapping the bales in plastic so that oxygen is excluded. This reduces the amount of time the forage needs to wilt before baling. It can be especially beneficial if rain is approaching, which can greatly reduce the quality of your forage. For more information on balage, just ask for publication AGR-173: Baling Forages for silage, available at the Trimble County Extension Office.

Harvest Aides: Don't forget, we have several hay temperature probes and a hay moisture meter available for free checkout at the Trimble County Extension Office.

always deliver satisfying flavor—whether it's found in scrumptious strawberry pie, luscious strawberry preserves, or a yummy fresh berry snack! Not only do they have mouth watering appeal, but strawberries provide great healthy benefits. Weight watchers can enjoy the fact that a 1/2 cup serving of sliced berries has only 25 calories. Of all berries, strawberries are highest in vitamin C, with a 1/2 cup serving providing 80% of recommended daily values.

When selecting berries at your Farmer's Market or grocery, stay away from containers of berries with juice stains which may be a sign that the berries are crushed and possibly moldy; soft, watery fruit that means the berries are overripe; dehydrated, wrinkled fruit that means the berries have been stored too long. Strawberries should be a bright shade of red and the caps on the berries should be green and fresh looking. Berries that are green or yellow are unripe and will taste sour.

In general, berries should be dry, firm, well shaped, and eaten within a week after purchase. If you can't eat them that soon, remember that berries freeze well! It's best to buy berries that are "in-season" as they'll cost less and are more ripe and flavorful than "out-of-season" berries.

After purchasing berries, check the fruit and toss out any moldy or deformed berries. Eat overripe berries within 24 hours. Return the other berries back to the original container or they should be arranged unwashed in a shallow pan lined with paper towels, and washed just prior to use. The berries may be topped with a paper towel to absorb any additional moisture. Put plastic wrap over the entire container. This will ensure the fruit retains its freshness.

Strawberries are a great snack, especially in unusual combinations with other popular Kentucky fruits and vegetables!

Removal of creek gravel can damage waterways, aquatic life

FRANKFORT, Ky. -Reports of excessive gravel removal from Kentucky streams have prompted the Kentucky Division of Water to reiterate creek gravel extraction guidelines to minimize impacts on the physical, chemical and biological characteristics of the waterway.

Creek gravel is used by roaddepartments, construction companies and private landowners in a variety of ways. However, when gravel is removed from the stream channel in an environmentally unsound manner, the disturbance to the stream bed and banks can degrade the stream channel, water quality and aquatic life, according to Barbara Scott, supervisor of the DOW Water Quality Certification Section.

"Gravel removal causes the stream bed and banks to become unstable, sometimes for miles upstream and downstream," Scott said. "The resulting head cuts and bank failures

Scott said because gravel provides a natural filtering system, its removal increases the volume of sediment in the water. The resulting cloudy, or turbid, water harms fish by clogging their gills, reducing the oxygen in the water and impairing feeding and egg development.

Guidelines for gravel excavation:

*Excavate gravel by using backhoes and frontend loaders to scoop and lift the material and place it outside of the stream channel. Perform work from the bank of the stream, avoiding use of vehicles in the stream

*Restrict excavation to the top 12 inches of gravel bars outside of the stream

*Excavate only once per year during low-flow periods of late summer or fall, avoiding the fish spawning season of April 15 to June 15. *Maintain a buffer of 10 feet between the shoreline and the work area and minimize vegetation loss. It should be noted that in-stream activities that significantly increase sedimentation or alter stream flow are violations of state water quality standards and may be subject to enforcement action. Additionally, stockpiling of excavated material in the floodplain will require the acquisition of a floodplain permit from DOW.

Judicial

and a capital project to replace the court system's obsolete case management system, which is at risk for failure.

With final passage of House Bill 269, the Kentucky General Assembly reduced the total funds available to the Judicial Branch by $25.2 million for Fiscal Year 2013. This includes a permanent reduction to the annual base operating budget of $16.2 million and a onetime transfer of $9 million in payroll to the state's general fund by June 30, 2012. The legislature mandated that this amount for the June 30 state payroll be moved to July 2 to shift that expense to the next fiscal year.

"Our situation is serious," Chief Justice Minton said. "In spite of our efforts to secure adequate funding, the legislature's appropriation is far short of what is necessary to operate the Kentucky court system for the next two years. These recent reductions are especially challenging because they've come quickly on the heels of other cutbacks."

Since the economic crisis began in 2008, the Judicial Branch has cut 282 employees statewide, eliminated court programs and trimmed operating costs at all four levels of the court system to stay within budget.

"Until now, we were able to take aggressive measures to avoid furloughs and keep courts open," Chief Justice Minton said. "But there are only so many places to cut in a court operations budget that is 86 percent personnel. When there's such a large gap between what we ask for and what we receive, difficult decisions must be made."

The following actions will take effect July 1, 2012, unless otherwise noted:

FY 2013 BUDGET REDUCTION PLAN Reductions

*Close the Kentucky court system statewide to furlough all KCOJ employees for three days in 2012 - Aug. 6, Sept. 4 and Oct. Implement hiring restrictions requiring a new process to fill vacan-

*Reduce and cap the number of Drug Court participants.

*Reduce operating expenditures by $1.6 mil-

*Eliminate the Kentucky High School Mock Trial Tournament program.

Criminal Record Reports

*Charge Kentucky schools $10 for criminal record reports they currently receive for free.

*Increase the cost of criminal record reports for all other customers from $15 to $20. The Supreme Court and leadership from the Administrative Office of the Courts will meet again in January 2013 to determine if additional furloughs and reductions are necessary for the remainder of FY 2013, which runs July 1, 2012, to June 30, 2013. They will also begin drafting a budget reduction plan for FY 2014, which presents an even greater shortfall than in FY 2013.

The chief justice of Kentucky is the administrative head of the state's court system and is responsible for its operation. The Administrative Office of the Courts is the operational arm of the court sysemployees and 403 elected justices, judges and circuit

USDA celebrates 150th anniversary

By John W. McCauley USDA Farm Service Agency Kentucky

State Executive Director

One hundred and fifty years ago, in the midst of a great Civil War, it was a Kentuckian, President Abraham Lincoln, born in a log cabin at Sinking Springs Farm in present day LaRue County, that signed legislation to establish a Department of Agriculture in order to "acquire and to diffuse among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with agriculture ... and to procure, propagate, and distribute among the people new and valuable seeds and plants.

Armed with broad mandates, the "People's Department," as he called it, set about to serve American farmers and a mostly rural American landscape. been a very successful 150 years for USDA.

The challenges ahead are many, both for USDA and American agriculture, but by focusing on a strong safety net for farmers and ranchers, supporting policies that encourage sustainable productivity, and by promoting vibrant markets that help feed consumers at home and abroad, the "People's Department" will continue to help create jobs, support working families, strengthen rural communities, and build on the success and productivity of the America's farmers and ranchers.
